Alderman Grunrivant presented the following preamble and resolutions.—

Whereas the Hen William W. Campbell, one of the judges of the Superior Court, has, without color of law or justification, assumed the prerogative of directing and controlling the municipal legislation of this city, by issuing an injunction prohibiting the Mayer, Alderman and commonalty of the city of New York from performing a legislative not supposed by him to be probably about to be performed, and summoning the said Mayer, Alderman and commonalty to appear before him and show cause why the said injunction issued at the close of a session, and threwing forward the period of such showing of cause beyond the expiration of the session, in regard to a measure which has been pending for months, bears on its face a character of indirection not less unjuntifiable and not less unworthy of the judiciary than the usurpation of authority and jurisdiction which is contained in such an attempted injunction itself. And whereas, if the legislative act in question abould prove, on judicial investigation, to be epen to any objection of illegality or unconstitutionality, there would always exist ample opportunity for restraining its execution, by injunction upon the first proceedings of the parties authorized to easy the same into effect. And whereas, if such a precedent of unwarranted and unwarrantable interference with the rightful functions, powers and duties of a legislative body, attempted by a judge, be submitted to, or tolerated without just robute, not only will the whole municipal legislation of this city, with its half million of inhabitants, be subjected to the caprice or interested views of any judge who might be found willing to come forward with attempted vetoes in the form of injunctions, but the next natural step of judicial usurpation will be to arrest and veto. in similar manner, the legislation of the State, or that of Congress, or any judge's opinion of constitutionality, expediency or motive, at the close of a session, when all business regard to the legislative action of the Common Council.

Resolved, That in reference to measures against which the injunction in question is directed, it was adopted by the Common Council on grounds of public expediency, justice and right, for the best good of the city. both in regard to the accommodation and service of the public and in regard to the interests of the city treasury, and also on petitions from more than thirty thousand citizens, and that nothing has yet appeared which shakes the ground on which it was so adopted, and that we shrink from no discussion or investigation, judicial or otherwise, into the foundations of these grounds, and the reasons of our action, collectively or individually. [Our Special Report.]

BOARD OF ALDERMEN, Dec. 29, 1852.

THE DUMPING GROUND IN THE FOURTH WARD.

Alderman OAKLEY, of the Fourth ward, moved that it be referred to a special committee to select a site for a dumping ground, in lieu of that at the foot of Roosevelt street. In moving this, he would call to the memory of gestlemen round the Board, that several weeks ago a resolution had passed that the druping at the feet of Reservels street should be discontinued from the first of December, and that it was understood the committee should select another place, but that no action had been taken since for shating the pulsars place, but that no action had been taken since for abating the nuisance.

Alderman Shutth, of the Eleventh ward, wished to offer a paper in connection with the resolution.

Alderman Oakley thought the one offered by him was first in order, unless the gentleman proposed it as an amendment.

The Principlent was under the impression that it was offered as an amendment.

Alderman Shuth had not done so, but would now put it as an amendment. He then made a motion, to the effect that pier No. 39. East river, be set apart for the use of the Department of Streets and Lamps, for the purpose of dumping coal sihes Alderman Oakley — the question had been referred to the Committee on Streets.

Alderman Cornell, begged to correct that mistake; no such resolution had been referred to their committee.

take; no such reselution had been reserved to shour committee.

Alderman OAKLEY might be mistaken as to the particular committee. For 20 years and upwards the ground at the foot of Rosseveti street had been used, and on the last occasion a majority of the Beard had voted to have the nuisance removed. He hoped they would adhere to their action. The Fourth ward had for years been the receptacle for this dirt and filth, and he hoped the amendment would not be adopted.

would not be adopted.

Alderman Alvord (Eighteenth ward) would ask where the locality mentioned in the amendment where the locality mentioned in the amenament was.

Alderman Oakley—Adjoining the pier where the nuisance has existed 20 years.

Alderman Smyn produced the city map for the purpose of showing exactly the spot. He pointed out the line of the ferry track, which came within 40 or 60 feet, and no vessels but these manure boats could get in

Alderman Oakley denied this, and stated there was room enough and water enough for ships of could get in

Alderman Oakley desied this, and stated there was room enough and water enough for ships of large size Ho hoped it would be referred to a special committee. They had tried one of the others.

Alderman Smyh ——It was proposed, he believed, to have the dirt carted from the Second, Sixth and Fourteenth wards, to the foot of Jefferson street. The members of the board knew very well that the cry was always "keep the streets clean, and we don't care," and now they were proposing to shut up the only avenue that was open to them for clearing that portion of the city. Where would the gentleman of the Fourth find another place?

Alderman Oakley supposed that was for the committee to say.

Alderman Smyh.—The whole pinch of the matter was this. He hoped the alderman of the Fourth would not interrupt, or oblige him to treat him otherwise than as he always had done, that was as a gentleman. The place where it was proposed to be placed was in the Fourth ward, and he would like to get clear of it. He (Alderman S) would be glad if they could, but let them have some place where they could get the dirt out of the city.

Alderman Oakley thought that it might be performed without dumpting on the piers at all. He did not think he would select a place in the Eleventh ward. But they now carted the dirt from the Second and Sixth into the Fourth ward.

Alderman Bahr, (Sixth ward.) explained that it had been referred to the Committee on Cleaning Streets, and they had seen one or two places; and they had seen one or t

The Pressident called the Board to order; and Alderman Doherty continued—Here they were called upon to place the head of a department in opposition, to give this large amount of work to any one he pleased, and at what price he pleased; and this was decidedly wrong. In a few instances the members of the Board of Public Health, had, in perfect good faith, enabled an officer to perform such work without any check; and in his, (the Alderman's) own ward, work had cost $300 or $400 which could have been done for $40; and at the present moment, he was filling up lots himself which they had to pay for, and this would admit the City Inspector to do the same thing. Give him that position and the fortune of himself and friends was made. Was it possible they could pass an ordinance like the present, when they were accountable for their acts. All honest men, sitting round the Beard, would, he thought, coincide with him, that it was an improper paper, and ought not to pass. Another objection was, the lot Captain Levi petitioned to have filled up would cost about $75, and tacked on this simple petition was a batch of papers emalating from the department, and relating to lots the filling up of which had never been asked for. Another objection was, that, as had been suggested by the gentlemen of the Eighteenth ward, it was doubtful whether the amount could be assessed on the people without advertising. He had himself bought some once at an assessment sale, and the assessment turned out, for that reason, to be null and void, and the Corporation were compelled to refund to the purchasers. He moved it be referred back to the committee.

Alderman Derman supposed it was understood that the whole paper was to be printed.

THE BROADWAY RALLROAD—RESOLUTION CONFIRMED NOTWINISTANDING THE VETO AND INJUNCTION—EXCITING DEBATE—EXTRAORDINARY CONVERSION—ALDERMAN STURTEMANT, DEMOCRATIC; AND THE MAYOR THE "MAN OF THE PEOPLE," &C.
Alderman STURTEMANT, DEMOCRATIC; AND THE SIGNAL WAS INDUSTRIAN OF THE PEOPLE," &C.
Alderman STURTEMANT OSE and said—I believe it is pretty well understood, that a short time ago a grant was made to certain parties of the privilege of constructing a railroad in Broadway, and that the resolution had been returned by the Mayor, with a veto message. The law said that in not less than ten days after its receipt, that message might be taken up, and the resolution reconsidered. Those ten days have elapsed, and I now move that the bill be taken up and road.

Alderman WARN—I suppose the members, sir, are aware of the fact that we have been enjoined; here is the decument, and I ask the clerk to read it, (producing the injunction granted by Judge Campbell, and printed in yesterday's HERALD)

Alderman BARR objected to its being read at all, at least by the clerk; it was not a paper belonging to the Board, but one addrossed to an individual.

Alderman WARD—I believe I have the right to read it.

Alderman TWED—I call to order. The gentle-read it.

Alderman Tweed—J call to order. The gentle-man of the Fifteenth ward is altogether out of order.
The PRESIDENT—The question will be on taking up the resolution.

Alderman Ward—If there is any virtue in that paper at all, we have no right to touch that resolution. If the chair decides that I am out of order,

that is another thing
PRESIDENT—The Chairman does decide that you are out of order.
Alderman WARD—I move to call the ayes and Alderman Ward — I move to call the ayes and nees.

The question on taking up, was then put and earried, by a vote of 15 to 4.

President — The report is now before you.

Alderman Stuetevant — Now I move that this board proceed to reconsider it.

Alderman Cornell seconded the motion.

Alderman Ward was proceeding to read the injunction when Alderman Tweed rose.

Alderman Ward — I have the floor.

Alderman Ward — Is that directed to you?

Alderman Ward — Is that directed to you?

Alderman Ward — Permit me to sak a question whether pending the metion I did not make one.

President — The Seventeenth seconded the motion to reconsider, and is in order.

Alderman Ward — I would ask whether all the petitions are accompanying the report I suppose it is necessary we should have all the papers.

Alderman Stuetevant — They are all in the possession of the clerk. saion of the clerk.
Alderman WARD-I don't care about the clerk;

the Board ought to have them.
Alderman FIGHT was replied, the objection was only made for the sake of embarrassing the question, and quoted the rules governing the Board, from which he argued it was not necessary when they were reconsidering "any act, ordinance or re-solution." They were new on the resolution Alderman Ward—We have a right to all the pa-pers and to know all about it, which, perhaps, the Alderman of the Third does not. Alderman Tward saked if he had any amendment

The PRESIDENT—There can be no amondment to the motion
Alderman STURTAVANT—He can have them if it becomes necessary I understand there is a document coming from a court of law, and I beg to say I do know semething about it, for I have a copy in my pocket
Alderman WAED—I sak for the reading of the papers. The resolution is acking up all the papers the Board has before it.
PRESIDENT—I understand you to offer up another and a private paper.
Alderman WAED—Do I understand that it will not be received?

PRESIDENT—I understand you to offer up another and a private paper.

Alderman Ward—Do I understand that it will not be received?

PRESIDENT—It is out of order.

Alderman Ward—Well, I will make some observations on the subject of this.

Alderman Dougherry would make a suggestion. The gestleman had a right.

Alderman BTURTEYANT believed it was established he had a right to use any printed paper that was respectful, in the course of his argument; but he did not knew whether this was respectful.

Alderman Ward—I was going to say there is a summons from a court, and my objection is, this Board cannot act. It was that the cierk can't act. He daze not call the ayes and nose here (laughter); and I was going to put the question whether the chair can put the question; and, therefore, we cannot act on the veto. Every member has a copy of the injunction in his pocket, as the gentleman from the Third had admitted; and if he acted, he did so at his personal peril, as every other member did. They might think it a very slight thing to disobey an injunction, but many a man was sent to prison for it. (Laughter.) I can't, continued he, take any action on that paper; and I trust the good sense of the Board will dictate to them, if they have no respect for the court, that they should have for their own personal liberty.

An Alderman—And lives. (Laughter) Alderman Wark—No, not their lives, but every member's personal liberty is in danger; and all I have to say is, each must be like the old woman's ducks, and stand on his own bettom. He did not expect that any respect would be paid to the veto, or that it would have any, "though one rose from the dead;" and he deemed it a waste of time to discuss the former subject at all. The veto had been before them some days; every one had had time to read it over, and had done so, if they dare vote with the injunction before them.

Alderman Tweed said, when the Seventh ward elected him as their representative, they gave him the right to think for them, and had not delegated it to Mr. Justice Cam wan't But they now carted the dirt from the Second and Lerman Earns (Citt ward) explained that it had been referred. Explained that it had been referred to the many care the proper sension. He hoped it would be referred to them again.

Alderman Alvors seconded the motion, and after a little more discussion the question was put and carried.

rinceut, by those who knew better than he did; for (continued Aid. S.) I am sure his own honest mind is convinced. I have known him twenty years, ever since we sere both small boys with a few paltry pence, till now that his own industry has enabled him to amase a fortune. He is one of the people, (Laughter.) He sprang from among the people, and will yet die among the people, though he lives at present in an aristocratic quarter of the town, where he can fearedly call his soul his own. (Loud laughter and ironical cheers.) And I am quite certain that he has signed that veto against his own honest democratic coaviction. (Gore laughter) Look at the remonstrances and see how they are written, in a bold, plain hand of those who can write well. But the petitions were written by the tax payers. Most of the mwore cramped—perhaps the production of a hand more accustomed to work than to write. They are the bone and sinew of the country, and they rule the roast—they ought to rule it. They rule it now in numbers, and they will continue to rule it. (Cheers and laughter.) It would have been more in accordance with candor and honesty if the Mayor had returned it a few days before; and why did he rot do it? I si ta fixed fact that there is only one man of honest intention, and the forty members of the Common Council, coming from all sections, know nothing? I never will subscribe to such a position. He was glad he had the happiness of finding it his let to nave the reconsideration and adoption of the resolution. He was signed to place it on public record that he was the mover in a matter fraught with so much benefit; and he hoped it would now pass without a single dissentient. The Mayor, in the course of his other was the mover in a matter fraught with so much benefit; and he hoped it would not have the defended of he had the had on the proper defended to heart that he offered to pay a large sum of money and particularies Mr.

were we to look to the old country for precedents?
Did we do so when our Independence was declared?
After a few more observations he concinded, hoping members would look clearly and calmly at the question, and that he might have the concurrence of the Alderman of the Fifteenth.

Alderman DENMAN, made a few remarks. He had at first been opposed to the measure, but now thought it would preve of great service to the commanity. He was perfectly willing and anxious to court the investigation to which they were challenged by the proceedings in court, and hoped it would go to the court of last resort; and amidst the ten thousand rumers, it was time the rights and position of the Common Council were definitely determined.

Alderman Tween then spoke, arguing that the terms and conditions imposed on the grantees, were calculated to be of greater public advantages than the payment of the money offered by the other applicants. He urged that accommodations would be afforded to the working classes, such as were his constituents, and concluded with some strong remarks on the conduct of a portion of the Dress, in always impugning the notices of the Common Council. Public opinion as expressed by them, was only the eche of the dollars of the property holders.

Alderman DENMAN regretted the course the debate had taken, but—

Alderman STURTEVANT thought it was only a proper rebuke, and quite coincided with the gentleman of the Seventh (Tweed.)

Alderman STURTEVANT thought it was only a proper rebuke, and quite coincided with the gentleman of the Seventh (Tweed.)

Alderman SHURT supposed they all had the fear of Eldridge street before their eyes. If they went there for their New Year's they would be a very nice party, and he would, at all events, vote as before.

Alderman Tweed related and characterized the language as being "blackguard," whereupon

The President realled them to order; and, after a little further
